LAPORTE® 2004 : THE TARGET USED IN ATHENS
WITH LESS THAN 0.1% NO BIRD.

WEATHER GROOVES...
To prevent targets sticking in damp conditions

DRIVING BAND WITH MORE RIDGES...
For maximum rotation and excellent stability in flight. Reinforced structure allows the clay to be thrown a distance of more than 100 m.

DOME PROFILE...
For a more aerodynamic profile

CHAMFERED EDGE...
To avoid adjustment of the clay separator on machines and reduces the number of no-birds

DIMPLED DESIGN... Studied by German engineers, the numerous square indentations are real lead "catchers". Avoiding ricochet and considerably increasing the breakability of the clay. This technology is used for the Bitume exclusively.

INTERIORS GROOVES...
To increase the breakability and improve the scores

TITLE

GIOVANNI PELLIELO

Since 1992, the 35-year-old Italian trap shooter, Giovanni Pelliello, has been qualifying for each ISSF World Cup Final and this year he seized his sixth victory at the World Cup Final Dubai.

Fifteen years ago, Giovanni Pelliello started his international career at the European Championships 1990 in Uddevalla as Junior European Champion. At the World Championships in 1995, 1997 and 1998 he had won his three individual titles in the Trap event and at the Olympic Games in Sydney 2000 he placed third and four years later he took the silver medal at the Games in Athens 2004.

Overall, within his fifteen years of shooting at international competitions, Pelliello won 54 medals, 34 were in gold. This year, he has already won the season's first World Cup in Changwon and now at the closing competition in Dubai, he took his tenth World Cup Final medal, the sixth in Gold.
